

Technical Risks: Progress Report 3

Low-Risk:

Meeting Regularly; We have been able to meet fairly consistently twice a week, though we have occasionally missed meetings due to attendance issues.

Medium-Risk:

Project Progression; We are more closely following Nguyen's schedule for the project, which sacrifices speed for detail and rigor. The intent is that our research might be able to be published by the end, which means our starting premise has to be rock-solid.

High-Risk:

Keeping meetings relevant; We have had difficulty throughout many meetings staying focused and on track for the entire duration of the meeting. This is something we are actively focusing on reducing to maximize time spent toward the project.